The Sand Pebbles: Top Adventure — Book, Film, TV

I put in a plug the other day for a CBS documentary, "Cortez's Conquest of Mexico," and the TV show was a bust. I had read the book but hadn't seen the picture—making for a gamble on which a fellow frequently loses.

But here's another effort on firmer ground, for I've both read the book and seen the picture: Channels 11 and 12 are starting "The Sand Pebbles" at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday) and running the last half at 8 p.m. Friday. I regret that this notice comes too late for mail subscribers who won't receive The Star until Friday morning—but they'll have a crack at the furious last half of the book at 8 p.m. Friday. (I was prevented from getting this piece into print Wednesday because I had trouble locating the book in my library. I have money for books but not time enough for the tedious chore of indexing them.)

"The Sand Pebbles" was a Book-of-the-Month selection, a national bestseller, and was made into a fine motion picture—being shown at the Saenger theater, as you may recall.

It was Richard McKenna's first novel. An enlisted machinist in the U.S. Navy he spent his first 10 years in the Far East, two of them on a Yangtze River gunboat. Thus he learned, from first-hand accounts, of river adventure during the Chinese Revolution—which is the theme of "The Sand Pebbles."

McKenna's life is the reverse of most novelists'. He had his adventures first and learned to write afterward. After retiring from 22 years in the Navy he was graduated from the University of North Carolina, married a University librarian, and made his first book a smash hit.

Equally enchanting is the story of his gunboat's name. Actually it was the San Pablo, which U.S. sailors promptly corrupted into "The Sand Pebbles."

As the author reports in the opening chapter:

"She was one of the ancient gunboats captured from Spain and sent to form the Yangtze Patrol during the Boxer Rebellion."

Our machinist hero met the ancient gunboat, took a long look before boarding her for the war upstream on the Yangtze, and, the book continues:

"Here I come, ship," he said softly.

1318 said killed in bombing

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam announced today that a preliminary survey showed 1,318 persons were killed and 1,261 wounded by U.S. bombing raids on Hanoi last month.

A communique of a special investigating committee said that, in 10 days of bombing between Dec. 18 and Dec. 29, American planes made more than 1,000 sorties against the North Vietnamese capital. This included 500 B52 attacks.

It said 40,000 tons of bombs were dropped, devastating densely populated areas.

Economic, educational, social and cultural establishments were razed in 353 places, it said. Some areas were hit as many as 10 times, it added.

The workers' quarter of An Duong was obliterated on Dec. 21 by 600 bombs from the huge B52 bombers, the communique asserted.

Bombing suspension relieves Soviet leaders

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

From what Moscow has said and done — or, perhaps, failed to say and do — it seems Soviet leaders are relieved as anybody outside North Vietnam by suspension of the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong.

This suggests a clue to things to come. Possibly, Moscow foresees a whole new chapter in superpower relations that cannot begin to unfold until the Americans find some acceptable way out of the Indochina mire. Maybe — just maybe — the Russians even might be willing to provide a little extra shove to help matters along.

Why were Soviet leaders so clearly worried and so meticulously careful about their reaction to the fierce U.S. bombing of their ally?

Obviously, Moscow ardently has wanted to avoid upsetting the new trend in U.S.-Soviet relations for down-to-earth practical reasons involving the Soviet economy and its troubles. But there are deeper reasons, perhaps. Can it be that the Russians are worried that endless U.S. involvement in Indochina paralyzes American policy planning and inhibits developments of a sort the Kremlin would like to see take shape?

Is it that Leonid Brezhnev has reverted to an old notion of Nikita Khrushchev that it might be possible to insulate the two superpowers against the possibility of blundering into war with each other?

Back in the 1950s, Khrushchev threw out broad hints, scaring West Europeans in the process, that the Americans and Russians might do worse than stake out spheres of influence in a sort of superpower coexistence that the rest of the world would have to accept.

Khrushchev was repudiated eight years ago, but the notion of whacking up the world seems to be popping up again. Whatever their goal in the present circumstances, the Russians had to have important reasons for the way they spoke and acted when U.S. B52s rained destruction on Hanoi. Figuratively, they wrung their hands. They said it wasn't right. They denounced it as barbarous. They said it might affect Soviet-American relations. Might. They didn't say positively.

That was a good deal less than they could have said and probably much less than North Vietnam wanted them to say and do.

Meantime, the Russians walked on tiptoe in the Middle East as if to suggest they didn't want anything untoward to happen there, thus affronting the Egyptians. They made a big pitch for détente in Europe. They engineered a new, peaceful-looking relationship between the two Germans. They talked affirmatively with the Americans about a number of things all the way from strategic-arms limitation to commerce.

Moscow might see some important benefits from a modus vivendi under which both superpowers observe "no trespassing" signs.

The United States did not interfere when the Russians crushed a reform movement in Czechoslovakia, and Americans officially appear resigned to the idea that Communist-ruled Eastern Europe is the Soviet backyard.

The Americans, too, are being passive about growing Soviet influence in South Asia through India and Bangladesh and the flag-showing activities of the Soviet fleet in the Indian Ocean. Actually, the Americans are pulling out — or trying to pull out — of the Asian mainland.

On the other hand, the Russians seem tacitly to indicate that they don't want to step on sensitive American corns in the Middle East and that Latin America also is the American backyard.

That sort of idea would have frightened Europe in the 1950s. Today, it is less worrisome. The Common Market, now expanded from six to nine nations, wields mighty economic power. The Americans have said that, if they can get out of Vietnam, this will be the "year of Europe" in U.S. policy making.

S. Vietnam accuses North of seeking a 'disguised victory'

PARIS (AP) — The semi-public Vietnam peace talks resumed today with a sharp clash between the Communists and the South Vietnamese over the peace agreement Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho drafted in October.

Hanoi called for the United States to sign the agreement "promptly," but Saigon denounced the draft as a "disguised victory" for North Vietnam.

Saigon's representative renewed its demand that Hanoi recognize the existence of two sovereign states in Vietnam. Dinh Ba Thi of the Viet Cong said this was "utterly absurd" and a "U.S. maneuver to deny the fact that there now exists in South Vietnam two administrations, two armies and three political forces."

Saigon Ambassador Pham Dong Lam told the 172nd session of the semipublic Paris peace talks: "Unless they admit that their design is to achieve the reunification of Vietnam their way and to place the whole of Vietnam under their domination, the Hanoi authorities cannot fail to acknowledge that there are two distinct states of Vietnam."

He said both are "internationally recognized, each having its own political regime and exercising its sovereignty on its own territory, as in the cases of the two Germanys and the two Koreas."

The four-party talks resumed today after a two-week suspension. Their renewal was a preliminary to the resumption Monday of peace negotiations between U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter told the meeting the new year should mark "the concluding phase of this protracted conflict" in Vietnam but added he did not "underestimate the problems which exist and which will face us still for some time."

Porter said the past four years of negotiations had been "largely sterile exchanges which only developed last October into a phase which can today be described as a serious negotiating process."

Today's session was expected to be Porter's last appearance as head of the U.S. delegation before he leaves for Washington to become undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Porter said the negotiators now have to start anew, "having learned lessons from this painful history and apply those lessons both to the concluding phase of these negotiations for a settlement in Vietnam and to the new stage of regional relationships which can now develop."

He said this will require "continuing work, patience and a large measure of understanding for continued differences of view and continued suspicions which cannot overnight disappear. I am not inclined at all to underestimate the problems which exist and which will face us still for some time."

The talks were suspended for two weeks during the bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area, but on Wednesday North Vietnam and the Viet Cong agreed to resume them. The Communists walked out of the Dec. 21 meeting to protest the bombing and proposed the talks resume Dec. 28, but the United States and South Vietnam refused.

Two more planes reported lost in VN air war

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today announced the loss of another B52 heavy bomber and another F111 fighter-bomber in the air war against North Vietnam.

It also reported that the recent air blitz on Hanoi and Haiphong pushed the total number of Americans killed, missing or captured during the last two weeks of 1972 to 109, the greatest number of American war casualties in two years.

The South Vietnamese Command reported 116 enemy attacks across the country during the past 24 hours, including 82 rocket and mortar attacks. It was the highest 24-hour total in two months; but most, apparently, were small. First reports from the Saigon command said four civilians were killed and 43 wounded; no American casualties were reported.

The U.S. Command said the B52 crashed today after being hit during a mission over the southern panhandle of North Vietnam. All six crewmen parachuted into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued. It was the 16th of the eight-jet Stratofortresses to be shot down since Dec. 18, when President Nixon shifted most of the B52 force to the attack on North Vietnam.

The command also belatedly announced the loss west of Hanoi of another $15-million F111 fighter-bomber on Dec. 22, during the air blitz on the Hanoi and Haiphong area that ended last weekend. The command said the two crewmen were missing. Other sources said they were known to have parachuted before their plane crashed and were believed to have been captured.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is talking tough about ending the war. The weeks ahead will tell whether Senate and House are prepared to match the words with action if President Nixon does not gain a settlement.

Congresses past have heard speeches, adopted resolutions, approved amendments, all aimed at ending U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But always they have stopped short of seeking to legislate peace by denying the administration the money to finance American participation.

That is what Democrats on both sides of the Capitol are talking about now, in the opening days of the 93rd Congress.

During its 1972 election-year session, the Senate twice approved, once rejected, amendments to cut off Vietnam appropriations. The House voted down such legislation.

Earlier, the Senate three times had adopted measures to set deadlines for U.S. withdrawal, contingent on the release of American prisoners. Those failed in the House.

The one amendment on which Congress did agree was attached to a weapons-procurement bill in 1971 and sent to Nixon. It was a compromise which asked Nixon to set a final withdrawal date as soon as possible, again, subject to prisoner release. The President signed the bill but said the Vietnam-policy rider was not going to affect his position. He said it was "without binding force and effect."

House Democrats have adopted a resolution calling for an end to U.S. spending on the Indochina war, subject to arrangements for safe withdrawal of American troops and release of POWs. That action came in party caucus and has no binding effect, although the 154-75 vote signals roughly the lineup on the majority side of the aisle when and if legislation on that issue comes to a vote.

Democrats in the Senate are discussing a similar resolution. But with peace talks resuming Monday, the next real moves in Congress may await Inauguration Day, Jan. 20. Before the new Congress convened, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said his attitude on legislation involving the war likely would depend on the status of the peace effort when Nixon formally begins his second term.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, both spoke of pressing for action in Congress if peace does not come by Inauguration Day.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he thinks Congress would vote to cut off war funds in its first appropriations bill if the conflict is not over.

That first bill almost certainly will be a measure to continue foreign-aid spending, now due to lapse on Feb. 28.

Demos in agreement on VN issue

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a White House suggestion that congressional intervention might prolong the war, Senate Democrats are in general agreement that Congress should try to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam if President Nixon does not.

There is increasing sentiment that Congress should act unless a settlement is negotiated by Jan. 20, when Nixon begins his second term.

Democratic senators planned to consider today a proposal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy that would make it the policy of Congress to cut off all money for the Vietnam war immediately.

The only conditions on the cutoff, which was adopted by House Democrats Tuesday, would be release of U.S. war prisoners and safe conduct for withdrawing American forces.

Senate Republicans, meanwhile, with 17 of their number absent, voted 16 to 10 to support "the efforts of the President to end the tragic conflict in Indochina now through a negotiated settlement."

With the war the prime topic of conversation at the opening of the 93rd Congress, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen: "Members of Congress should ask themselves if they want to be responsible for raising doubts in the enemy's mind about the United States position and therefore possibly prolonging the negotiations."

In organizing for the 1973-74 session, Senate Republicans chose conservatives for two leadership jobs. William Brock of Tennessee defeated Edward M. Brooke of Massachusetts to become chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. And John Tower of Texas won over Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio for chairmanship of the policy committee.

Antiwar sentiment was not confined to the Senate Wednesday.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., introduced a bill calling for a prompt peace agreement and, if not, a cutoff of all money for the war.

Rep. Michael J. Herrington, D-Mass., offered a resolution of inquiry calling for the President and defense secretary to report on the number of bombs dropped, shells fired, planes lost, and men killed, wounded, captured and missing since the bombing of North Vietnam was intensified Dec. 18.

The Senate Democratic Conference endorsed a statement by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield assigning top national priority to "termination, forthwith, of our involvement in the war in Vietnam."

Mansfield noted Nixon could withdraw all U.S. forces from Indochina "by a stroke of the pen" but Congress cannot. "I do not know whether there is a legislative route to the end of this bloody travesty," the senator said, adding that Congress has no choice but to try.

The 16-10 vote by Senate Republicans endorsing Nixon's Vietnam peace efforts came at the confused breakup of a party conference.

Conference Chairman Norris Cotton, R-N.H., said he was one of those who opposed the last-minute resolution by Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois because there was no time to consider it adequately.

Less than half of young voters did cast ballots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau reports that less than half of the newly enfranchised voters from ages 18 to 21 cast ballots in the 1972 presidential election.

A report Wednesday showed 5.3 million youths in the 18-21 age bracket voted, which was 48.3 per cent of those eligible. It compared with a turnout of 71 per cent in the 45-64 age bracket, which had the best showing.

The over-all voter turnout was smaller in percentage terms in 1972 than in the 1968 presidential contest. The bureau said 63 per cent of the 132.3 million who were eligible actually voted in 1972, compared with a 67.8 per cent turnout in 1968.

Although Census Bureau officials and politicians consider the first voting performance by sub-21 voters as dismal, they said it was indicated by previous census surveys and was not surprising.

Takeover of RR is proposed

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress has been asked to set up machinery for a federal takeover of the Penn Central Railroad by a corporation to be known as the Northeast Transportation Authority.

A bill introduced by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., would put a stop to "the continued federal nursing of a private corporation," he said Wednesday.

Present, he said, "it is obvious the government will be called upon to provide more and more money while service dwindles and employees of Penn Central are laid off."

While his legislation does not provide for immediate takeover, he said it would establish machinery to permit this when it is determined there is "no reasonable prospect for achieving a traditional income-based reorganization of Penn Central without the abandonment or subsidization of lines needed for transportation or a serious reduction of the work force."

Meantime, Rep. John W. Wyder, R-N.Y., citing the Long Island Rail Road strike as "the latest in a series of transportation crises faced by Congress," introduced legislation that he said would protect the "public interest and the national interest in disputes involving the transportation industry."

Similar legislation died during the past Congress. His bill would have a single set of procedures for dealing with national transit disputes and would set up ways to encourage what he called "effective use of various private collective-bargaining techniques."

The legislation would amend the Railway Labor Act by ending reliance on government machinery or intervention for handling grievances and for collective bargaining in rail and airline industries.

There would be special provisions to let the President call for additional cooling-off time or appointment of a special board to determine if a particular strike is justified, with a method of final offer settlements to be submitted by the parties for selection by an impartial board.

1972 marked the 25th year

The bureau by law is prohibited from gathering figures on how the sub-21 age bracket, or any other voting group, cast its ballots. It did not offer any speculation on the reason for the low turnout in the sub-21 bracket.

The voting age was lowered from 21 to 18 by a constitutional amendment in time for the 1972 elections.

Voter participation was highest in the 45-64 age bracket with a 71 per cent turnout among the 42.3 million who were eligible to vote. There was a 51 per cent turnout out of 13.6 million eligibles in the 21-24 age bracket, many of whom also were first-time voters.

Mills plans review of IRC

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping review of the Internal Revenue Code, leading to a tax-reform bill for House consideration this summer, is planned by Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee.

But Mills cautioned, in an interview, against expecting either a substantial increase in government revenues or a general lowering of taxes to result from the reforms.

"I don't think you increase revenues by tax reform," the Arkansas Democrat said. "You usually find that a gain here is offset by a loss there." And, he added, in its present fiscal situation the country cannot afford an over-all tax cut of any size.

Mills said he expects to begin hearings by late January or early February, depending on how quickly the new House completes its organization, and to continue about six weeks.

5 die in VN

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that five Americans were killed in action in Indochina last week and another 24 are missing, raising the two-week casualty toll to 109 since the start of the Hanoi-Haiphong blitz Dec. 18.

Most of the casualties were airmen lost in air raids over the northern homeland. The casualties are the heaviest in nearly two years.

During the first week of the blitz, from Dec. 18 through Dec. 23, the weekly casualty summary reported seven Americans killed and 73 missing or captured.

The U.S. Command also reported 13 Americans wounded last week and three deaths from nonhostile causes.

The South Vietnamese command reported that its total of battlefield deaths declined last week for the third successive week. The total of 293 was the lowest since North Vietnam launched its offensive last March 30.

Another 1,056 South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded, and 29 were missing, the Saigon command said.

It claimed that 1,288 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American — 45,928 killed in action, 10,294 deaths from non-hostile causes, 303,597 wounded, 1,806 missing or captured.

South Vietnamese — 162,041 killed, 432,915 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong — 919,615 killed.

Change names? I'll second that

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I named our son John Allen Jones II after my husband. We used "the second" because we didn't want to call the baby "Junior." We were later told that "the second" should not be used when a boy is named after his father. It is used only when a boy is named after another relative bearing the same name. We know several people who have used "the second" when naming a son after his father. Have all these people made a mistake or has the rule changed?

In this state (Tennessee) we have one year in which to make a change in a name without any difficulties. Please tell us whether we should change "the second" to "Junior."

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Change your son's name from "the second" to "Junior." A child bearing the same name as his father is Junior. If a child bears his grandfather's name, which is different from his father's name, he is "the second." If grandfather, son and grandson all have the same name, the father of course is "Junior" and the grandson is "the third."

The use of "the second" indicates that the bearer of the name is a cousin, nephew, or grandson of the original holder of it.

DEAR ABBY: We are two girls who are having a big argument. She's 17 and I'm 18. She's a virgin and I'm not, and she says a guy can tell whether a girl is a virgin or not by the way she walks.

I say a girl doesn't walk any differently after she's gone all the way with a guy than she did before.

We'll be looking for your answer.

WAITING IN COLORADO

DEAR WAITING: You can't tell if a girl is a virgin by the way she walks. But you can sometimes tell by the way she TALKS.

DEAR ABBY: The other day I was with a young friend who told me [with no shame whatsoever] that she was using her husband's telephone credit card given to him by his firm to be used for business calls only. She bragged that she made long distance telephone calls to her parents and friends all over the United States and thinks nothing of it. And she said her husband said it was okay.

This young woman has four children and she would be furious if one of her children "stole" anything. Yet that is exactly what she is doing. I can't understand some parents. No wonder their children don't respect them.

I am sure her husband would lose his job if his firm ever caught on. Or do all businesses expect a certain amount of chiseling?

NO NAME, NATURALLY

DEAR NO NAME: I'm sure they don't. Your friend is not only dishonest, she's stupid. Somebody should tell her husband to wise up, get his credit card back and go straight. Companies check up on that sort of thing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED IN CEDAR RAPIDS: My doctor said: "Tell the 49-year-old lady with the 52-year-old husband to keep her guard up. She is not beyond the age of child-bearing."

TOPS Club meets

Gifts were exchanged and a salad supper was served at a meeting of the Arkansas TOPS Club No. 94 in the Douglas Building on the first day of the new year 1973.

In the absence of the leader, Mae Meloy opened the meeting and led the pledge and the song. This was the Christmas meeting that had to be postponed, and 22 were present to see Barbara Cornelius crowned Queen of the Month and Sheila Halsell crowned Queen of the Week.

Eggplant is also for eating

Eggplant dish with ground meat and Spanish olives merits stars.

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Eggplant remains a decorative rather than edible table item in many regions of North America, even among those who enjoy growing this succulent vegetable. However, it is the culinary heart of much Spanish and Mediterranean cookery and can be eaten with much pleasure in hot or cold dishes. Eggplant actually is native to the East Indies and was introduced into Spain during the Middle Ages by the conquering Moors. A favored dish is similar to the Greek Moussaka in which the ingredients are mixed and baked in the eggplant shell.

MEDITERRANEAN EGGPLANT

2 medium eggplants
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1½ pounds ground beef
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup diced green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup pine nuts or blanched slivered almonds, toasted
¼ cup dark seedless raisins
1 tablespoon capers
¾ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives

½ cup chopped parsley
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste

Cut eggplants in half lengthwise. Carefully remove the pulp with a small sharp knife, leaving a ½-inch thick shell. Chop eggplant pulp. (There should be about 4 cups.) Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in large skillet. Add beef and saute until browned, stirring frequently. Remove beef with slotted spoon to large bowl. Sauté onion in drippings in same skillet until golden. Add remaining butter to skillet. Stir in green pepper and chopped eggplant. Sauté 1 minute, stirring constantly. (If necessary, add more butter to prevent sticking.) Cover and cook eggplant mixture 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add sauteed vegetable mixture with all remaining ingredients to beef, toss until well combined. Fill eggplant shells with meat mixture. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes in large shallow baking pan. Garnish eggplants with additional olive slices and parsley sprigs. (Makes 4 main dish servings.)

(*NOTE: Eggplant may be frozen at this point. To serve, thaw in refrigerator for 24 hours. Bake in 375-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until hot throughout.)

Baked beef sandwich has a bite

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

In this era of snacks, it is nice to have a few items on hand for quick meals that do not involve spending money at the hamburger joints. A hearty sandwich with nutritional bite in it combines broccoli spears, corned beef spread and Swiss cheese. It's good for lunch or as a mid-night snack.

CORNED BEEF BAKED SANDWICH

1 10-ounce package frozen broccoli spears
4 slices white bread,

toasted
1 4½-ounce can corned beef spread
½ teaspoon horseradish
4 slices Swiss cheese

According to package directions, cook broccoli until tender. Meanwhile, combine corned beef spread and horseradish and spread on toast. Place well-drained broccoli spears on top of corned beef spread. Top with slices of cheese. Bake sandwiches in 350-degree oven for 5 minutes or until cheese melts. Makes 4 sandwiches.

The limits of Lib: What's in it for happy homemaker?

(First of Two Parts.)

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The women's lib movement has its critics even among those who love it.

There is placing too much emphasis, some feel, on women becoming career minded and competing with men in every job area. Many women who are happy as wives and mothers now wonder if there's something wrong with them for being contented with their home-making lot.

Oddly enough, both the movement and its dissenters contribute to the same result—a tremendous number of women entering the temporary job market where hours are often flexible and women can become part of the career world and still maintain their jobs as homemakers.

What's going on in the temporary job market today? Who are the women who are looking for work and who are the women who should stick to their guns, women's lib notwithstanding, and stay at home with their families? These questions are discussed here by two people who manage two of the largest temporary employment services in business today.

"I do a lot of speaking to women's clubs across the country," said William Olsten, chairman and chief executive officer of the Olsten Corporation, a temporary employment service. And my message is that they can be liberated and still be women.

"I tell women's groups, 'Come back to work.'" And a good many women listen, for over 55,000 women worked for Olsten last year.

The service sends salesmen and market men out seeking temporary jobs and work of all kinds is covered. Olsten believes that women's groups are good sources of temporary workers for many of the women have not worked outside their homes for years and would prefer the freedom of a temporary job to settling down immediately in a permanent one.

"I try to match the woman to the neighborhood she is living in and the job she will hold. For we are responsible for her all the way up," he said.

"She can leave us for a week and come back in a month. She has great flexibility."

Competent people at any branch where a woman applies sit with her, discuss what she wants to do and give her a free brush-up course if her skills are rusty.

"As the standard of living becomes more difficult to maintain," Olsten added, "more women come to us than normally would."

"But a lot of women say they need a job for economic reasons when they really don't. The real reason they come to us is that they want to get out of that tame routine."

"Another group who want temporary jobs now are the women who went through college without getting married because they were career oriented. Then they did get married. And what the hell are they going to do? They're still career minded."

One thing that helps the temporary worker, according to Olsten, is that American industry is more flexible where hours are concerned today which makes it easier for a woman with a family to work.

He has long been an advocate of equal opportunity. Half his own branch managers are women. He believes that over the last 20 years society's attitude of "a woman's place is in the home" has changed radically and that millions of women have found it possible to combine careers and motherhood and excel in both. He thinks, too, that often women are mistaken in thinking they have no skills. "They don't realize that their experience with the P.T.A. and fund-raising has prepared them to undertake many kinds of jobs."

"I am strongly in favor of women taking on important and greater responsibilities in the work world," Olsten said. "I believe we would never have made the deadlines that we had to make in industry in this country without the women in the work force."

Yankees sold in $10 million deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Burke has assumed control of the New York Yankee ship and the suave, new captain sees clear sailing ahead.

"We think we can take all the marbles in 1973," the modish, gray-haired Burke said after his 12-man business group took control of the American League baseball team in a $10 million deal with CBS Wednesday.

The syndicate pulled off the deal for the relatively cheap price because the CBS network apparently had become disenchanted with the once-powerful franchise.

Burke, who will continue as Yankee president, said that CBS was at times embarrassed to have a less successful team after earlier years of power.

But, despite the selling price—$3.2 million less than CBS paid for the franchise in 1964—Burke said that the network "broke even" over the years. CBS had some financially profitable seasons, said the new owner.

The change of ownership won't mean a change of location, insisted the new owners at a press conference.

"The Yankees belong in Yankee Stadium, said Cleveland shipbuilder George Steinbrenner, another of the new bosses. "and, they should always be winners. We don't plan to move anywhere except upward in the standings."

Steinbrenner and the rest apparently plan to leave full control in the hands of the seasoned Burke.

Names of the other new owners were not immediately disclosed. Burke said that a majority of them were from outside the New York area, however.

The deal was sparked when Burke and Steinbrenner were introduced through a mutual friend and began discussing the possibilities in September.

Burke, a former CBS vice president assigned to operate the team, negotiated the purchase with his former boss, William Paley, president of the network.

The Yankees had won their 29th pennant when CBS took control eight years ago. But since the network takeover, the New Yorkers have finished no higher than third in the American League.

In 1972, attendance at antique Yankee Stadium dropped to 966,328. It was the first time that the Yankees had failed to draw a million in a season since the Second World War.

Manager Ralph Houk, who signed a three-year extension to his contract late last summer, and the rest of the organization "will remain intact," according to Burke.

The only thing that will not remain intact will be Yankee Stadium itself. The 50-year-old structure will undergo a $24 million remodeling after the 1973 season.

Nixon contributes to Clemente fund

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Nixon has donated a personal check for $1,000 to the charitable causes of baseball star Roberto Clemente, missing and presumed dead in a plane crash.

The money will go to relieve survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake and to fulfill Clemente's dream of a sports camp for boys in his native Puerto Rico.

Clemente was believed killed last Sunday while accompanying a plane load of supplies from Puerto Rico to Nicaragua.

Recognized as one of baseball's all-time greats in his 18 seasons with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Clemente is survived by his wife, Vera, and three sons: Roberto Jr., 8; Luis, 7; and Enrique, 4.

A group of 70 Pirate officials, players and front office workers were to fly today from Pittsburgh to Puerto Rico to console the family.

"I know it will be a struggle for them to continue without him," teammate Willie Stargell said earlier this week. "I hope there is something we can do."

Pirate President Dan Galbreath and players Steve Blass and Dave Giusti met Wednesday in Washington with President Nixon, who later made his personal donation to the Nicaraguan embassy.

Meanwhile, checks were pouring in Wednesday to various charitable funds established in Pittsburgh in Clemente's honor.

"It's just unbelievable," said Ruth Orphan, who opened the first batch of mail at the office of the Pittsburgh Jaycees, sponsor of the Clemente-Nicaraguan Fund.

"I would guess this morning we've received about 300 letters," she said. "They're mostly checks from adults. I just opened one envelope with a check for $1,000."

Donations were also being accepted by the Nicaraguan Relief Fund, established here last week at Clemente's personal request.

In addition, the Pirate baseball club had set up another fund to build a sports camp for boys in Puerto Rico, one of Clemente's longtime goals.

Meanwhile, the Allegheny County commissioners had declared today a day of mourning and a memorial service for Clemente was scheduled in the county courthouse.

Blackout is lifted on Super Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football League, assured of a sellout crowd for Super Bowl VII on Jan. 14, has lifted local television blackout of the National Football League championship playoff for the first time.

Final assurance came Wednesday when the participating clubs, Miami and Washington, reported sale of their allocations of 12,000 tickets each. The game will be televised nationally by NBC.

"Heck," said a spokesman for Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, "we've had 24,000 inquiries for tickets since last March when we learned the game would be played here. In fact, we've had that many in the past week."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the NFL announced last October that the blackout that has existed for each of the first six games would be lifted if the game was sold out 10 days in advance.

Warrior coach loses his cool

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
All McGuire lost his cool in Indianapolis.

For the first time anyone could recall, the coach of the unbeaten nationally third-ranked Marquette Warriors slammed the door and barred reporters from the dressing room after the Warriors barely managed a 67-66 victory over unranked Butler Wednesday night.

"If you can't put your guts out to play then get the hell out," the waiting newsmen overheard McGuire scream at his players.

In winning their ninth in a row, the Warriors wiped out a five-point Butler lead at 66-61 with six consecutive points in the closing minutes. Two baskets by Allie McGuire made it 66-65, then Dave Diesman won the game with two free throws. A last second shot by Butler's Kent Ehret rolled off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

La. Tech replaces SFA in poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Louisiana Tech replaced Stephen F. Austin today as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press' college division basketball poll.

Polling four first place ballots and a total of 184 points, Louisiana Tech held a slight advantage over Stephen F. Austin, No. 2 with 169.

Eau Claire of Wisconsin, second last week, slipped a notch to third with 131 and was followed by Roanoke with 106.

The remainder of the Top Ten included No. 5 Kentucky State, with 94 points; No. 6 Sam Houston, 88; No. 7, Augustana, Ill., 86; No. 8 Hillsdale, 50; No. 9 Capitol, 39, and No. 10 Akron, 38.

Sam Houston, Hillsdale, Capital and Akron were the new members of the elite group. They replaced Tennessee State, Alabama State, Old Dominion and Albany, Ga.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-8-6-4-2:

The Carolina Cougars are surprising a few people with their current play. But Larry Brown isn't one of them.

"I felt all along that we would either be No. 1 or No. 2," said the Cougars' rookie coach.

The Cougars, not picked to finish high, by many pre-season prognosticators, currently are riding a seven-game winning streak following Wednesday night's 110-107 American Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets.

The streak has pushed them into first place in the East Division. It's not surprising at all, emphasized Brown.

"We have two fantastic players—Joe Caldwell and Billy Cunningham," said Brown. "And even when we get a guy hurt, there are others on this club good enough to pick up the slack."

Caldwell scored 24 points and Cunningham hit for 23, while Carolina got a key three-point play by Ted McClain in the closing minutes, clinching the victory.

"We were fortunate to win," McGuire said later after he had calmed down. "They put pressure on us. I thought Mason did a magnificent job, the best against us all year. We tried to get him out on fouls, but we couldn't."

McGuire referred to Daryl Mason, 6-foot-7 Butler junior, the game's leading rebounder with 17. In addition, he scored 15 points, second to Ehret's 22. Larry McNeill was high for Marquette with 21.

Marquette was the only team in the Associated Press Top Ten to see action. Of the Second Ten, No. 14 Alabama whipped Florida 69-56, and No. 20 Indiana routed Ball State 94-71.

Wisconsin's Badgers, who forced Marquette to go two overtimes to beat them last Saturday, shaded Pitt 72-70. Virginia rallied from a 15-4 deficit and beat Duke 80-74 in overtime, while Doug Collins of Illinois State scored 57 points in a 103-98 overtime triumph over LSU-New Orleans.

Kevin Joyce tallied 24 points, leading South Carolina over Lafayette 81-48, and Michigan State won its second straight holiday tourney, beating South Alabama 36-78 in the final of the Senior Bowl. Four straight baskets by Mike Robinson, the tourney's Most Valuable Player, pulled MSU from behind in the second half.

Cougars ride winning streak

In the other ABA games Wednesday night, the Kentucky Colonels topped the Indiana Pacers 109-107; the Memphis Tams ripped the San Diego Conquistadors 123-110, and the Utah Stars downed the Denver

Rockets 108-103. Kentucky's Artis Gilmore set a club record of 33 rebounds and also made two free throws with 33 seconds left, giving the Colonels their victory over Indiana.

Rockets wallop Celtics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After crushing the Houston Rockets by 20 points Tuesday night, the Boston Celtics played the same team in the same place Wednesday night and lost by 11.

What happened? "We were going to the boards tough, we concentrated on screening out the rebounds ... and tonight we ran well," said Houston Coach Tex Winter after his Rockets walloped the Celtics 123-112 Wednesday night in their National Basketball Association game.

Tuesday night, also in Houston, the Atlantic Division-leading Celtics hammered the Rockets 130-110.

Houston guard Jimmy Walker had other reasons for the turnabout.

"We scored when we needed to in pressure situations late in the game," said Walker. "We were hitting at the free throw line when we got into bonus situations early."

In Wednesday night's other NBA games, the Baltimore Bullets tripped the Cleveland Cavaliers 89-80; the Detroit Pistons walloped the Phoenix Suns 119-105; the Milwaukee Bucks turned back the Atlanta Hawks 105-97, and the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 107-100.

Sabres win 11 in a row

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Home sweet home. Buffalo has been all that and more to the Sabres through this National Hockey League season.

The Sabres, only NHL team unbeaten on home ice, stretched their undefeated streak to 20 games Wednesday night, trimming the New York Islanders 4-1. It was the 11th straight victory at home for Buffalo, an NHL record for an expansion team.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Wednesday night, the New York Rangers blanked Los Angeles 3-0 as goalie Ed Giacomin set a club record with his 41st career shutout. Montreal whipped Toronto 8-4. Pittsburgh dumped Chicago 5-3. Philadelphia topped Atlanta 3-1, and California blasted Vancouver 11-3.

Rick Martin and Rene Robert each notched his 24th goal of the season for the surprising Sabres, who remained two points back of the third-place Rangers in the NHL East. Gerry Meehan had his 23rd and Mike Rottaille also scored for Buffalo.

"I don't think it was a great game," said Buffalo Coach Joe Crozier. "I don't think our team was fabulous tonight, but we picked up two points and we're that much closer to the playoffs."

Giacomin kicked out 26 Los Angeles shots in blanking the Kings.

Letters To The Editor

BASKETBALL ANYONE?

Editor the Star: I'd just like to say that it is disappointing to say the least to see the people of Hope staying at home, when one of the finest basketball teams in the state is playing right here in town. I'm speaking of the Hope High girls basketball team. Last night Hope played Stephens at Hope in a very big game for Hope, in that Stephens represents one of the hurdles. Hope must jump before winning the District. Hope rose to the occasion and beat Stephens, before a grand total of about 500 people. Granted, there were more people at that game than usual, but Hope is a town of over 10,000 people, so the percentage you can see for yourself.

These girls practice daily and take these games as seriously as the male athletes take football games in the fall. So why not come out to these games and support these basketball teams the rest of the season.

Who knows? You could be a deciding factor in the making of something we've never had in Hope, a Senior Girls State Championship. Thanks for you time.

Larry Brown & Joe Green share honors

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Brown of the Washington Redskins, who ran around and over waves of tacklers, and Mean Joe Greene, who made waves of tacklers, were named today The Associated Press Players of the Year in the National Football League.

Brown, the running back who rolled up 1,216 yards to lead the National Conference and helped carry the Redskins to the NFC championship, amassed 41 of the 67 votes for NFL Offensive Player of the Year cast by a nationwide panel of pro football writers.

And Greene, the tackle who anchored the Steelers' line which had opposition quarterbacks running for their lives and running backs looking for places to hide, garnered 32 of the 67 votes cast to easily take NFL Defensive Player of the Year honors.

There was a three-way tie for runnerup in the offensive category as O.J. Simpson of Buffalo and Earl Morrall and Larry Csonka of Miami received five votes each.

Simpson provided the Bills with most of their offense and, surpassing the injured Brown in the regular season's final game, won the league rushing title with 1,251 yards.

Morrall replaced injured quarterback Bob Griese in the fifth game of the season and proceeded to direct the Dolphins the rest of the way to a perfect 14-0 season and to the American Conference East championship. Csonka was the mainstay of Miami's record-setting ground attack as he bulled for 1,117 yards, second only to Simpson in the AFC.

Closest to Greene's 37 votes in the defensive balloting were linebackers Nick Buoniconti of Miami with eight and Chris Hanburger of Washington with seven, followed by defensive tackles Bob Lilly of Dallas with four and Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles with three.

Palmer doesn't like not winning

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Palmer, probably the most popular professional ever to play the game of golf, is annoyed—but not overly concerned—with his failure to win a tournament last year.

"I don't like not winning a tournament," the 43-year-old Palmer said before his first round today in the $135,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

"But it had to happen some time. It happened to (Ben) Hogan and it happened to (Sam) Snead. And," he said, and paused for a moment, "it'll happen to Jack Nicklaus."

Palmer, however, is far from giving up—is far from through, in the grinding competition of tournament golf as he starts his 18th season on the tour.

"I'm at the stage now that Snead was 10 years ago, or 20 years ago," he said.

"I'm really not hitting the ball all that well, but that's not the problem. The problem is the short game. I've just got to start making some putts ..."

Palmer went through 1972 without a victory, the first time that's happened in his storied career. He got close, was in position to win, at least four times, then failed.

Third down awards

Tarkenton, Butkus are on NFC's Most Valuable list

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor
NEW YORK— (NEA) — The Minnesota Vikings traded with the New York Giants for Fran Tarkenton, in anticipation that the veteran quarterback would lead them to a championship.

The Vikings, however, went on to compile one of their worst records in years. Some may blame Tarkenton in part, but it will not be his teammates. They named him the winner of the NEA 1972 Third Down Trophy, symbolic of the team's most valuable player.

The Third Down ballots were filled out by the players on their respective teams, in a poll taken by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The other National Conference winners are:

CHICAGO: Dick Butkus, middle linebacker. A repeater. Still tops. Second was Bobby Douglass. Douglass is to the Bear offense what Butkus is to their defense. Everything.

DETROIT: Larry Hand, defensive end. Emerging as one of the great quarterback sackers of the age.

ATLANTA: Dave Hampton, running back. The Packers, who traded him, may have felt he was dispensable. The Falcons would disagree.

GREEN BAY: Chester Marcol, kicker. Polish-born, soccer-style first-year man from little-known Hillsdale College. It is probably even more unusual for a kicker to be named MVP than for a rookie to get the honor.

LOS ANGELES: Ken Iman, Center. It's usually the guy on the other end of the snap who gets the recognition.

DALLAS: Walt Garrison, running back. The versatile, hard working Garrison is enough to make Cowboy fans forget Duane Whetsel's name.

NEW ORLEANS: Archie Manning, quarterback. Not only did Manning replace Edd Hargett at quarterback, he also replaced Hargett as team MVP. Manning completed his second pro season with deserved honors.

NEW YORK: Ron Johnson, running back. He is becoming a perennial 1,000-yard season rusher and, concomitantly, one of the game's finest backs.

PHILADELPHIA: Harold Jackson, wide receiver. Another case of one team (the Rams) trading off a man who becomes a standout with another team. It was a rough year for the Eagles collectively, but not Jackson individually.

ST LOUIS: Ernie McMillan, offensive tackle. This

Larry Brown

12-year veteran continues to be among the best in his business in the NFL.

SAN FRANCISCO: Ted Kwalick, tight end. The 49ers throw to him in the clutch, depend on him in the clutch. That's the way it was for Kwalick at Penn State.

too. Everything changes, nothing changes.

WASHINGTON: Larry Brown, running back. He runs over you, around you, under you, through you. He is doing for Washington what another Brown once did for Cleveland.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Paraplegics Can Still Have Sex

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb — The shooting incident that resulted in the paralysis of Governor Wallace is tragic and most unfortunate. I've wondered, does being paralyzed prevent sexual activity?

Dear Reader — I have no personal knowledge of the extent of Governor Wallace's injuries and their effects. However, your question is definitely applicable to the multitude of individuals who are quadriplegics or paraplegics, or otherwise have significant damage to the spinal cord. Spinal cord injury does not mean sexual incapacity. In a report by Medical World News, January 14, 1972, it was pointed out that the vast majority of men with spinal cord injuries can have erections, and if the cord damage wasn't complete, 70 per cent of them had a full experience.

A program to educate paraplegics on their sexual capacity and help them with this problem has been adapted and presented by the University of Minnesota, under the guidance of Dr. Theodore Cole of the Medical School's Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Department. One of Dr. Cole's problems has been to change the attitudes of physicians and hospital staffs about sex and the paraplegic. In the past there has been a widespread belief that individuals with spinal cord injuries were relegated to a sexless existence. This is far from true, and the vast majority of these people can be helped. I know of individuals with this problem who have fathered children.

The Minnesota Method uses a film, "Touching" produced by the National Sex and Drug Forum, which is an organization sponsored by

Co-captains named for Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Tony Adams of Utah State and Willie Harper, Nebraska's All-American linebacker, have been named North squad co-captains for Saturday's 24th annual Senior Bowl all-star football game.

The South players were to elect their leaders today and both teams were closing out heavy work before a final day of preparation on Friday.

The South team, coached by Weeb Eubank of the New York Jets, announced replacements Wednesday for two players injured in earlier games.

Ernest Price, a 6-foot-6, 250-pound defensive tackle from Texas A&I, substitutes for Jamie Rotella, a second string All-American linebacker from Tennessee, and John Steinke, 5-foot-11, 183-pound defensive back from Southwest Texas State, for Ken Phares of Mississippi State.

The North team is coached by Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills.

Pro golf tour on $8 million binge

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The pro golf tour is off on another of its $8 million binges, and that means Jack Nicklaus will be dropping 20-foot putts, his rival half-smoked cigarettes and Bob Hope one-line quips at every green.

The $135,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open starts today over the historic Riviera Club, once known as "Hogan's Alley." It used to be the plain LA Open. Now it has the long, hyphenated name which makes some people wonder whether it's a golf tournament or a pop concert.

It's the new look of big time golf—par-busters shooting for a million and show people searching for new exposure.

Golf business has joined show business in holy wedlock. It's more than a marriage of love. It's a case of necessity and cold economics.

Crooner Bing Crosby started it all with the Crosby Clambake in 1937. Then Bob Hope got into the act. Campbell, the popular singer, added his prestige to this traditional tour opener. Dean Martin has a tournament at Tucson, Andy Williams at San Diego, Jackie Gleason at Fort Lauderdale Fla. and Danny Thomas at Memphis.

If you sing or crack jokes for a living, you've got a head start at being the sponsor of a rich golf tournament. The reason: the extravagant modern-day purses are made possibly by celebrity pro-am tournaments, staged on the day before each tournament. It takes big names to get big names in the lineup to draw big crowds at the gate.

For the Hollywood crowd, it's

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19) Don't take cursory agreements for granted. The other guy could change his mind and leave you high and dry.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20) Ideas that appear to be without flaws may get shot down unexpectedly. Plan alternatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Frugal associates will be counting their pennies. You may not be counted in. Don't seek funds today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be hard-put today to get others to go along with your proposals. Reasons are likely to be erratic.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) If you delegate responsibilities today, be sure others know what they're doing. A bumbler could mess you up.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) Try to avoid hasty disciplinary measures if dealing with youngsters today. A firm, even hand is required.

RAP:
My girlfriend and I (both 16) have been going together for three months, but mostly it hasn't been "together."

Her parents have got to be the strictest in the world. I ask her out all the time, but the usual answer is, "No, my folks won't let me." We only see each other at school and sometimes on weekends when she's allowed to go skating with girl friends. If her father knew I was there too he'd probably keep her home, (which is off-limits to me).

My friends tell me to break up and find a chick who can do things with me, but they don't know how I feel about her. I love her very much but since the Christmas holidays, when I couldn't even talk to her on the phone, I'm beginning to agree with them.

What should I do? —
CONFUSED
DEAR CON:

You'd be surprised how many teenagers have this same problem. Parents of girls are often so scared by all they read and hear that they figure boys can't be trusted, even in their own living rooms.

What can you do?
We've listed several times before all the routine procedures:

1. Go to see the girl's mother and try charming her. Mothers aren't as tough as fathers, and sometimes they'll act as go-betweens.

2. Get brave and stop over on a Sunday afternoon. If you prove you aren't trying to avoid her parents, they may accept you (grudgingly). Or you might "happen" by as she and her dad are washing the family car. A guy who HELPS can't be all bad, yes?

3. Perhaps your girl can initiate discussions with other parents or relatives who aren't as strict.

4. Last, the old standby: Talk it out. If teens show they "understand" parental fear and work on trust, rather than resentment, they'll crack all but the hardest nuts. Let's hope your girl's parents aren't that hard. Con.

So these are OUR hints. If anyone has other ideas, please give! Maybe we can run a column on "How to Educate Over-Strict Parents." —
HELEN AND SUE
RAP:

Every time I ride around and look at houses I wonder how many of them are like mine inside—full of screaming? You'd think since I was born to it, I'd get adjusted, but I guess I'm the oddball. I tie up in knots when my folks start yelling at each other.

It's worst at the breakfast table. I gag on my food, but I'm not allowed to leave. The terrible part is they don't even realize how they sound, while I'm quietly going crazy. They seem to thrive on noise.

My father can yell his head off. Then goes to work and his employees think he's the greatest. I live for the day when I can leave this house. Meanwhile, how can I live in it? —
PATSY
PATSY:

There are people who can only show they care through "screaming." I mean they're noisy by nature. If they didn't explode, they'd end up with ulcers.

If you can look at your folks and still see love through their fighting, then don't shut them up—just tune them out. These aren't YOUR battles. —SUE
DEAR PATSY:

Even if they aren't "your battles," constant screaming can drive a naturally quiet person up the wall. Why not tape record on the fights, play it back to your parents, then ask them to tone it down until you leave the house? They might even enjoy calmer breakfasts themselves, once they get used to them. —

George levels blasts

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep.-elect Lloyd George of Danville said Wednesday that state Highway commissioners wield "dictatorial powers" and "don't answer to anybody," and he proposed a constitutional amendment to require the General Assembly to reconfirm commissioners every two years.

"They are completely immune to the desires, wants and needs of the people," George said as he filed the proposal for consideration by the legislature when it convenes next week.

Under his amendment, each house of the legislature would vote on confirmation of all highway commissioners within 30 days after convening of each regular session before each commissioner would be entitled to complete the remainder of his term.

If a majority of either house failed to confirm any commissioner, a vacancy would be deemed to exist in his position and the governor would submit the name of a person to finish the term. This person's nomination would be confirmed by the Senate.

George said the Highway Commission had failed to come up with a plan for constructing roads. Instead, he said, each commissioner was "deciding arbitrarily what roads to fix in his own district."

"They spend millions and millions of dollars and answer to nobody," George said. "The House and Senate can insist that the Highway Commission come up with some plan of road construction."

He said there had been no rural road improvements in the last six years and possibly would be none for another six years.

Bill proposed to break up one of 13 'super agencies'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill to break up the state Department of Commerce, one of the 13 "super" agencies created by the 1971 executive reorganization act, was proposed Wednesday.

The proposal would strip the department of all the quasi-judicial regulatory agencies that were placed under the agency's control in the reorganization. These agencies would be made independent departments once again.

The bill also would prohibit transfers of personnel or funds among divisions within one of the departments or between the big agencies unless specifically authorized by the legislature.

Gov. Dale Bumpers has said he would seek the transfer authority in this year's legislative session in order to give the agencies more flexibility. Carrying a copy of the proposed bill to study at home, Bumpers told newsmen as he left his Capitol office that he still thought this flexibility was desirable.

The bill was prepared by the Legislative Committee to Study Reorganization, which was created by the 1971 legislature to keep an eye on the results of the reorganization act and report back to the 1973 General Assembly. A number of legislators have been grumbling about the reorganization.

Bumpers said he had met with the committee and "their concerns for the most part are appropriate." He said the committee seemed primarily concerned about budgeting for the central services.

The quasi-judicial agencies that would be taken from the Commerce Department are the Insurance Department; the Banking Department, including both the banking and securities division; the Transportation Commission; the Public Service Commission; the Oil and Gas Commission, and the Iquified Petroleum Gas Board.

This would leave the Commerce Department with divisions of natural resources; livestock, poultry and agriculture; forestry; soil and water resources.

Two charged with kidnapping in jail

DALLAS (AP) — The two men charged with kidnapping a Dallas socialite remained jailed today in lieu of bonds of $100,000 each after being bound over to a grand jury.

At their examining trial Wednesday the accused men's lawyer requested that the bond be cut to $10,000 apiece, saying his clients couldn't make the bond. Justice of the Peace Robert E. Cole refused the request to lower bond for Franklin Joseph Ransonette, 33 and Woodrow Holmes Ransonette, 31.

The Ransonette brothers are charged with the Dec. 19 kidnapping of Amanda Dealey, 22, wife of Joseph M. Dealey Jr., a member of the Dallas Morning News publishing family.

She was abducted from the car park outside her home in University Park about 5 p.m. and was released about 6 a.m. Dec. 22 after $250,000 had been paid in ransom. The ransom money was recovered.

FBI special agent Charles T.

Brown Jr. posed as a friend of the Dealey family and actually made the money drop. He took over reception of the telephone calls from the kidnapers after the initial call had been made to Joe M. Dealey Sr., at Dealey's home.

A refreshing taste of the past.

If it's Borden, it's got to be good.

Surprise move in trial

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A surprise defense maneuver has abruptly launched the mass murder trial of Juan Corona into its final stages after nearly four months of prosecution testimony.

Defense lawyer Richard Hawk rested his case Wednesday without calling a single defense witness, a move which Sutter County Dist. Atty. G. Dave Teja said was "slightly surprising" to him.

Corona is charged with the murder of 25 itinerant farm laborers whose hacked bodies were found in makeshift orchard graves in May and June of 1971 along the Feather River north of Yuba City.

He was arrested at his home May 26, 1971, a few hours after deputies unearthed the first 10 bodies. Court testimony said a ledger containing 34 entries, including the names of seven of the 25 murder victims, was found at Corona's home when he was arrested.

Teja was granted a delay until next Monday for presentation of his closing arguments. Hawk said after court that he didn't need any defense witnesses because "there were no strong points" to rebut in the 14-week presentation by prosecutors.

He said there was no reason for him to call defense witnesses "any more than a doctor has to give antibiotics to someone who isn't sick."

The prosecution didn't make a prima facie case.

A total of 117 witnesses and nearly 900 pieces of evidence were presented by the prosecution in a massive array of circumstantial evidence against Corona, a 39-year-old farm labor contractor.

Moments after Teja rested his complex 10-phase case, Hawk asked for a directed verdict of innocent from Superior Court Judge Richard E. Patton. Patton denied the motion after brief arguments and Hawk then told the court, "The defense rests."

Corona sat impassively at Hawk's side throughout the proceedings.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Stuntman Evel Knievel has escaped injury in an accident that caused some $6,000 in damage to his $200,000 jet-powered motorcycle.

Knievel was sitting on the vehicle while it was being refueled Wednesday when there was an explosion and fire.

He is here for a week-end motorcycle show at the Convention Center.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on Wednesday named Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to succeed retired Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., on the board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

The greatest football player in the world can't run for a touchdown if he finds himself flat on his back with a couple of linemen on top of him. Similarly, it doesn't matter how brilliant you are at dummy play, you can't make your contract if you are set before you gain the lead.

The South hand almost cries out for a two no-trump response to partner's diamond opening. The hand looks like one for no-trump play.

If you do play no-trump, a heart or club lead will be right up to an ace-queen combination. Your only four-card suit is clubs and no one really wants to play a balanced hand at a club contract.

PITCH IN—Dale Bumpers has proclaimed January as "PITCH IN" month. "PITCH IN" is the statewide anti-litter program sponsored by the Arkansas Jaycees and Keep Arkansas Beautiful Association. Present when the Governor made this proclamation were: David Hale, president of the Arkansas Jaycees; James Mason, president of the Keep Arkansas Beautiful Association, and Dick McKinney, president of the Little Rock Jaycees. The Arkansas Jaycees are conducting a statewide anti-litter campaign that will involve the obtaining of litter barrels for the state's streets and highways, an information program geared to the general public concerning litter, and a concentrated effort to have state and city law enforcement officials crack down on litter violators.

Kindergarten battle is looming in legislature

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A battle between Gov. Dale Bumpers and the General Assembly looms over a statewide kindergarten program when the legislators convene next week.

The Arkansas Legislative Council decided Wednesday to scrap Bumpers' proposal for starting the program. The council rejected the governor's budget recommendations of $4,362,242 for kindergartens in the next fiscal year and $5,761,206 in the following year.

Instead, the council voted appropriations of $250,000 in each of the next two fiscal years, which is $50,000 more than was made available for kindergarten programs this fiscal year. That money was used to train teachers for kindergartens, education officials said.

Chief objections to Bumpers' proposal was that it was too expensive and only the rich school districts would benefit.

Bumpers said he intended to pursue his budget request "very vigorously" in the legislative session. He said expansion of the kindergarten program had a "very high" priority in his administration and that his requested appropriation, if anything, was "too modest."

He also said there would be safeguards in his program to make sure all districts had an equal chance to obtain state aid for financing kindergartens. Bumpers said most legislators with whom he had talked recently seemed favorably disposed toward his proposal.

Prior to the vote on Bumpers' recommendations, the council defeated a proposal by Rep. John Miller of Melbourne to spend $15 million for construction of kindergarten facilities. Miller said many of the districts do not have facilities for a kindergarten program, and only the wealthy districts that do would be able to take advantage of the state kindergarten aid money.

Sen. Clarence E. Bell of Parkin, a supporter of the governor's proposal, said he would attempt to revive the program when the Legislative Joint Budget Committee meets.

GOP did NOT carry Arkansas!

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Despite President Nixon's being the first Republican presidential nominee to carry the state since 1872, the GOP lost the state when statewide races are combined and viewed as a whole, the Institute of Politics in Arkansas reported Wednesday in the first edition of its publication, Insights.

"In spite of the President's huge margins in every county, the Republicans managed to carry only two of the 75 counties when all six of the contested statewide races are considered," Insights said. The publication added that, statewide, Democrats received a 16.3 per cent majority of all the votes cast in the races for president, U. S. senator, governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and secretary of state.

The publication said Phillips County was the most Democratic county in the 1972 general election, giving 69.68 per cent of all its votes to Democratic candidates. It said that Searcy County proved to be the most Republican, giving majorities to five of the six GOP candidates, while Pulaski County gave majorities to three.

The institute attempted to make an analysis of the independent vote by drawing the assumption that votes cast for the Democratic presidential candidate, George McGovern, represented the hard-core Democratic loyalty vote while votes cast for Len Blaylock, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, were the hard-core GOP loyalty vote.

Using those assumptions as yardsticks, Insights said that the GOP won a majority of independent votes only in Pulaski and Pope counties.

He fiddles with retirement

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — For the first time since I've known him the word "retirement" didn't make Jack Benny grimace.

Like most veteran performers — and remember that Benny is pushing 40—he's scoffed at retiring. But this time, when the subject came up, he scoffed not.

"I don't think I'll ever retire fully," he said. "I'll always do concerts. I love them because they involve the two things I love the most, talking and playing the violin—but I am trying to cut down."

"I want to take it a little easier from now on. But it isn't easy to take things easy. You get involved."

He pulled out his schedule and showed how involved a star can get. There was a long list of appearances but most of them were benefits. He says if you say yes to one, it's hard to say no to some other.

He says the whole list of his dates includes only a couple that mean any money coming in. One of these is his NBC show, Jack Benny's First Farewell Special, coming on Jan. 18, with RCA picking up the whole tab.

"I have to do a TV shot or a special once in awhile," Jack says. "To prove to the nation at large that I'm still living."

He says if he does a benefit in Philadelphia or plays Las Vegas for a few weeks, the people in Philadelphia and Las Vegas know about it, but nobody else does.

"You have to have some national exposure," he says, "or else the whole country thinks you're either dead or retired."

He has a contract for another NBC special, which will probably be called Jack Benny's Second Farewell Special, and is tentatively slated for spring.

He says he thinks his first farewell special is good but he stresses the word "thinks." He says he'd be surprised if it wasn't good but adds that a performer can never really be sure about these things.

"We generally do pretty well if we start out with a good idea," he says.

And he thinks this farewell idea is a pretty good one. His manager, Irving Fein, thought it up, although Benny says it goes back in the dusty history of show business to such greats as Sarah Bernhardt and Sir Harry Lauder.

"I worked with some good writers on it," he says. "And, actually, I've always thought that I was a much better editor than I was a comedian. You know you can be a good comedian but if you're not a good editor you're in trouble."

"We've spent hours already editing my special and we're not through yet. Editing is a very important part of the business."

He says he may come up with an idea. He bounces it off his writers. Maybe six on a special. He says he won't use his idea, no matter how great he thinks it is, unless four of the six agree.

Benny says this may be one of the reasons many young comedians trip on their way up the ladder. They come to have too much faith in their own ideas and disregard the cautionary words of others.

But he says there are some young comedians he enjoys. He singles out Flip Wilson — "but he's been in the business a long time, don't forget"—and Bob Newhart.

"You have to give a lot of credit to any young comedian today," he says. "They didn't have the schooling my generation had. We had a chance to be bad, before we were good."

UPTOWN HOPE

God as the Big Banker in the sky Rev. Ike preaches green power

By TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK — (NEA) — The service in upper Manhattan's United Church begins much the same as any evangelistic hoedown. A little singing. A little clapping. A little shouting for joy and gladness. But when pastor Frederick E. Ekerenkoetter steps to the stage it's clear his message is unorthodox. It's not the power of the Almighty he raves about, brothers and sisters, it's the power of the almighty dollar.

"Lack of money," he says, "is the root of all evil."
Amen.
"No one," he says, "has to be poor."
Amen.
"Get off your knees," he says. "Because while you're down there praying, for a pie in the sky, by and by, when you die, somebody's gonna kick you in the pants."
Amen. Hallelujah. And don't forget glory be.

Is this any way to run a religious crusade? Frederick J. Ekerenkoetter II, mercifully known as Rev. Ike, thinks it is. And so do the thousands who gather regularly, in New York and elsewhere, to stand in awe of the new guru of the ghetto.

Dressed in 17th-century shirts, wet-look shoes and knit lapels that are cut like Christmas tree stars, he is outlandish even in the increasingly goofy spectrum of evangelical pulpitering. His hair, in a time of Afros, is slicked up like the Malibu surf. His little finger hangs an inch away from his fist under the weight of an enormous gold ring. And he's got this thin little mustache, just atop his lip, which all the black pimps wore in those 1950 movies about real life in the city.

But who gives a damn? Not Rev. Ike's congregation. He explains to them he went barefoot as a boy "so don't you bother me none about my high-heeled sneakers." Besides, they know, or at least they guess, he dresses like this for effect. The "pimp image" is an imitation, he says; people in the ghetto have always looked like the pimp, but over the head of the pastor, Ike is out to change that angle of sight.

And so, when the 37-year-old peacock has got everybody's attention, he gives them his version of what religion is all about: cold cash. God, to Rev. Ike, is the big banker in the sky. "I don't teach black power," he shouts, "because I can't spend it. I teach green power. Money. Blessed money." And when the congregation is sufficiently aroused, that is, greedy, Ike lowers the boom: "Don't wait for that pie in the sky, by and by. Get your pie now, baby. Right now. That pie is money!"

The response is immediate. Faces, if not souls, light up like the shine on Ike's cufflinks. And everyone in the church waits happily for their cash to roll in.

Ekerenkoetter, of course, waits happiest of all. For when his pages begin collecting the audience offerings (in plastic buckets), Ike becomes the largest beneficiary (tax free) of his sermon on positive thinking.

Few outsiders know how rich the evangelist has become in six years of preaching, but estimates are high.

His aide, Charles Gelini, says Ike "earns $40,000 a year salary." As for the church, "it's very wealthy." The Better Business Bureau of New York has tried to find out how wealthy, without success. "I haven't the faintest idea how much the church is worth," says Gelini, but I can give you some examples. Our church (which is an old Loew's theater) was purchased for $600,000 and is already paid off. We spend a million or so just on our monthly magazine. Rev. Ike has two homes, in Hollywood and New York, and he has a Mercedes automobile. Success, after all, is our whole idea."

Ike's success, to be sure, is of enormous benefit to his idea — which, as he perceives, is to get everybody out of the ghetto so they can "getmo." So he flaunts it. His stage is carpeted red, lined with gold chairs. His services are studded with testimonies (from fur-coated matrons to a Georgia legislator), of the power of Ike's thought. Yet the excess is not without its suspicious aspects, and legions of critics, including many young black militants, believe Ike is ripping off an already ripped people.

The sharpest condemnations are directed at Ike's monthly magazine, a full color monument to hard sell. The November issue, as example, describes the joy of a Port Gibson, Miss., man who "Gets New Seven-Room Brick House" merely from being blessed by Rev. Ike. offers a free prayer cloth ("but please enclose an offering"), and urges the reported six million readers to "do your business with God in a business-like way." The latter admonition accompanied by clippings for "blessing plans," which bluntly suggest divinity: "When you are prepared to give, you are prepared to receive." Ike lists $10 up to $1,000 blessing plans, with the higher priced ones, by implication, designed for those who want the sooper-dooper special blessing.

The criticism though, bothers Ike not. He's too busy counting coins. Besides, forgetting the scorn in his own community, he says his enemies are largely white: "When a black man starts to make it, what can you expect?"

Furthermore, as long as the crowds keep flocking Ike needn't worry about the morality of his morality. And there is every reason to believe the crowds will continue, including the infirm, the very poor, and the ignorant helpless. During a recent crusade in Macon, Ga., an elderly granddaughter of a slave said it for many like herself: "I was born poor. I married poor. I'm still poor. Rev. Ike, he's about the only hope I got left now."

Bryan warns of danger at school

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. L. L. Bryan of Russellville told the Arkansas legislative Council Wednesday that a fire at the Boys Training School at Wrightsville "could kill 200 boys at once."

He said that if it caught fire at night, "there is no way to get all the boys out of there through that one small door."

Business mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — It is at this time of year, when the mail brings bills rather than greetings, when reality closes in upon the spirit, that the working stiff takes pause to brood upon his financial plight. The postholiday letdown may be responsible for the mood or probably it has something to do with early dusk and the realization that winter has just begun and that vacation time is months away and that junior needs his tuition money now and Uncle Sam wants his by April 15.

Whatever, it is a time when everyone needs relief from bleak reality, when the spirit craves an infusion of hope to nourish dreams. And so, here it is.

Would you like to become a millionaire? While you consider your response to this perplexing question, here is some factual information on how it might be done, depending upon your age.

If you are young enough, say 25, you might accomplish this goal if you can invest $100 a month for 40 years, and never dip into it except for taxes.

If you're middle-age you may have to settle for less, something ranging from a half-million dollars down. But your approach would be the same — to set aside $100 a month every month and never vary from that schedule.

In a report to the council, the council's Committee on Charitable, Penal and Correctional Institutions said that a new $300,000 maximum security unit at the school is not being used for its intended purpose.

The committee said it was concerned that boys at the school were still being housed "in obsolete and unsafe facilities, yet the 38 beds in the maximum security unit are laying idle."

Bryan said that when committee members visited the school last month they found "five or six people" using the maximum security unit and that "they were teaching music in it."

While the unit is not being used, he said, "the boys are being housed in barracks that are an absolute disgrace."

Bryan said the maximum security unit was being used for counseling. He said the school superintendent had told the legislators that he had orders not to put boys in the unit and "that it was even off limits to him."

He said he did not know who gave the superintendent the orders, but the committee's report said the maximum security unit was "directed out of the Juvenile Training School Department in Little Rock and is not under the direct supervision of the superintendent of the Boys Training School."

Dr. Richard Walters is state commissioner of juvenile services.

The committee recommended that funds be provided to make necessary repairs and renovations of the dormitories and other facilities at the Wrightsville school.

The committee noted that one dormitory was built in 1936 under the Works Progress Administration of the Depression and was similar to a building that burned several years ago, killing several boys. The committee also recommended that the maximum security unit be returned to the operation of the institution and used for its intended purpose.

The committee recommended that the General Assembly review the administrative structure of the Training School Department to more clearly define responsibilities and control within the agency.

The committee report, which was adopted by the Legislative Council, also recommended that the legislature appropriate funds to build administrative headquarters of the Department of Correction and the Pardons and Parole Board at the new women's reformatory property in Pine Bluff. The headquarters currently are in Little Rock.

The committee also recommended that officials explore the possibility of the University of Arkansas Medical Center providing medical services to the Correction Department. The State Hospital now furnishes the services.

Administration's cuts on programs for agriculture aid is termed 'challenge'

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rural representatives on Capitol Hill say the Nixon administration's cuts in popular and long-standing programs of federal aid to agriculture are a challenge to the power of Congress.

Calling House colleagues to a strategy session today, nine Democrats and five Republicans said the Agriculture Department's decision to terminate some farm programs "is not a matter solely of agricultural concern, or of partisan concern—it concerns all members of Congress."

Administration budget-cutting recently ended two conservation programs for which Congress had specified more than $200 million a year. Other actions call for phaseout of emergency farm loans by the Farmers Home Administration, plus a halt to low-cost direct loans by the Rural Electrification Administration. "We feel that the termination of these programs can have disastrous consequences in agriculture and, beyond that, that the department's unilateral action is a challenge to the authority of Congress," the 14 Congressmen said.

They made the statements in a note urging fellow congressmen to attend a bipartisan caucus arranged by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., head of a House Democratic task force on agriculture.

Melcher told reporters Wednesday that the administration's actions have prompted "the most crucial, critical confrontation between the legislative and executive branches of government."

Instead of just impounding funds, Melcher said, the President has in effect repealed long-standing laws without consulting or gaining approval of Congress.

Meanwhile, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., told newsmen Wednesday that he intends to hold thorough hearings "at the earliest possible time" to examine the cutbacks "so that the members of this body, and the people affected, can have a voice in deciding what is good and what is bad for rural America."

Talmadge said he thinks the President's Office of Management and Budget, in a bid to hold federal spending to $250 billion a year, regards the farm population as "so impotent politically" that it is a good subject for cuts.
